

Meet the pipeline employee who leads our company in assists.

Ingenuity scores. A decade ago, Williams pipeline designer Keith Perry opened the non-profit BallCats Basketball Academy to assist Houston area youth. Williams doubled Keith's initial fund-raising total, paying for equipment and travel. Now these promising-young athletes showcase their skills, earn scholarships and learn positive principles to become workplace winners. It's how Williams works. Whether producing the natural gas our nation needs, or instilling the energy to lead our country.

Ingenuity takes energy.™

